As local entrepreneurs and business owners take advantage of Tulsa's growing economy and expand their business, Crown Office Furnishings is there to help. "For more than 50 years we've strived to provide the best fit for any customer," says Dan Stine, director of design and contract sales. "We've purchased truckloads of current name brand office furniture in the past year and are ready to offer it to our customers at very competitive prices." Most at less than half of new price, he says. "Start-up businesses seizing the chance to enter the marketplace or expanding businesses growing market share are taking advantage of these great savings," says Stine. Crown has also instituted a Trade Up program allowing customers to set up their offices with the lowest possible cost now with the flexibility of trading up in the future. Crown serves all of Oklahoma and deals in health care furnishings, hospitality furniture and systems furniture. The dealer offers more than 150 lines of new, used and remanufactured office furniture including desks, chairs, cubicles, files and conference room furniture. The third generation, family owned and operated company has built its reputation on providing unmatched value for its clients while retaining a boutique store experience.
